

DOORWAYS

Artist statement

Doorways is a book of personal diary images I've collected over a couple of years. The book is built in a complex way, the system of hand-bound pages brings volume and turns it almost into a sculpture. The images included are doorways into each other, they are connected with each other in a number of ways. There is no narrative, no main characters, no events, only a smooth flow of images and white space, a mental trip that aims to clear viewer's mind of everyday thoughts. There are several enigmas hidden inside the book and keys to unravel them, which will probably take time to guess and will invite viewers to come back to the book again and again. I call it a zen book - a tool for visual meditation, for being simply here and now.
